Description:

Going along with the exhibition theme 'Building from Waste', miLES, PareUp, and ETH Zurich are hosting a morning dialogue over a breakfast made of (still delicious) foods salvaged from local cafes. The discussion topics will be curated by facilitators in a round table format with 6 - 8 participants for each. The dialogue is meant to be an inspirational, light, and energizing way to start the morning off with a group of individuals passionate about utilizing underused resources -- be it underused spaces in the neighborhood, unused food left to waste, or anything in between.

Final topics will be posted at each table and the event will be conducive for participants to meet and mingle with the people they find interesting. At the end of the dialogue, we will share contact information so participants can keep the dialogue going or maybe even collaborate on a project together. The possibilities are endless!

Format:

There will be 6 - 8 tables with 6 - 8 participants each and discussion groups will form organically during the event. A host will be at each table to guide the casual conversation around how to tackle either food waste or underused spaces. Each table will have a unique, specific topic selected by the host, e.g. "Let's Talk about _____". It is a great chance to meet, learn, share, and connect with people on topics around wasted food and wasted spaces
